CORNUCOPIA

Delaware Valley College Fall 1993- Spring 1994 Doylestown, PA 18901 (215) 345-1500 Enrollment: 1,265

"What will the graduates of the Na tional Farm School do after graduation? When man and beast will give up the bad habit of eating, and the earth the custom of yielding harvests, then, and only then, will this question be of concern to me. But as long as man and beast will depend on the cultivation of the soil and on the breeding of the stock for their food supplies, so long will the graduates of this school have as good a chance in this world.'

This is a quote by Dr. Krauskoph on June 20, 1897. This is only a small indication of how Del Val has flourished since opening its doors to 10 students in 1897 and successfully graduating 7 in 1901. Now, the freshman class numbers 470 strong forcing throughout the year including the Festival of school officials to scramble for adequate housing. Not only has the number of people increased so has the curriculum offered. With

Jen Reynolds, a junior animal science major, beams a smile from her dorm room in Barness Hall. over sixteen different majors, it gives students the opportunity to grow in their respective fields.

Even in the past year campus events have grown. ICC's Club Night had its best turn out ever. Homecoming weekend experienced its first bonfire with Dave Binder and Yell Like Hell. The second annual Halloween Haunting raised over $$ 16,500$ for scholarships with over 2,000 people attending. The third Monopoly Tournamentraised in excess of the Worlds sponsored by the freshman class, Valentine's Day Semiformal held by sophomore class, and President of the Day Tse Poon.

Del Val also heralded the arrival of Office Of Student Life Coordinator Kelly Barclay, but said goodbye to Carol Doyle, from Alumni Development and Dawn Ridgeway from Admissions. Campus wide grief was shared following the passing of several faculty and administrative staff and senior Mike Savare.

An unusual amount of snowstorms hampered many commuters and caused the cancellation of almost a week's worth of classes. Spring did arrive though, bringing Pride-N-Polish Day and a whirlwind of A-Day activities.

Like those 7 students from 1901, Graduation Day couldn't come soon enough for the 360 members of the Class Of '94for them to be recognized for how far they have come from the start.

1994 Dedication To . . .   Dr. Jane H. Antheil

   Dr. Jane H. Antheil}

We the members of the 1993-94 yearbook staff would like to dedicate this edition of the Cornucopia to Dr. Jane H. Antheil.

Dr. Antheil has been at Del Val since February of 1990. In that short time she has firmly established herself in the college community as Dean of Enrollment. having the incredible responsibility of overseeing the recruiting and retention of students by working closely with Admissions and Financial Aid as well as the office of Student Life. Having two college aged children, she can relate to the frustrations of both parent and student when going through the the applications process and trying to finance an education.

When she's not busy in the office, Dr. Antheil spends time gardening, reading, enjoying the sun on the beach or getting used to her new bicycle. Peggy Strohl, a friend and co-worker, describes her as a fun, funny person who is very caring. She is a perfectionist and a stickler for details, yet cares more for others than herself.

At home in Pittsburgh.
We would like to take this opportunity to thank you. Dr. Antheil, for all your hard work and efforts that often go unnoticed by the very students you are working for.
"Dr. Antheil is the epitomy of professionalism and her love of DVC shows in the continuous efforts she puts forth to make the college a better place for the students. Admissions'Open Houses, Freshmen Orientations, Registration Days, Segal Hall's Offerings, etc. have all progressed with her guidance. Dr. Antheil's quiet demeanor enhances her gentle but firm leadership and hides the kean sense of humor she possesses. More simply said, in my opinion, she is the greatest'!!"'

Dorothy A. Chizek

Dr. Antheil recently celebrated her 50th bithday in Lasker Hall. She was taken out of a conference call in a wheel chair and into the party where she received many mock gifts.

Just call me lizard." | don't ever want to hear a shot whistle again!! Slammers. Best B-day ever. Thanx! -Joanne Snouffer

Hey Ron! Can you hear me?" No more banana banshees! Jo baby. Jo baby, Jo baby, Jo. I had a blast. Thanks Cancun!-Carrie Cavotta
"Hola Senioritas, taxi?" Hey Carrie, look at that iguana, its a horse! "Oh my God Yent, that fish is almost as big as me!'" Thanx for a great spring break! CANCUN ' 94 - Paula Margay

Justin, what night is Saturday Night Live on? Fat Tuesday's: Mon., Tues., Wed., Thurs., Fri. nights! Paula saves the day. Seven wake up calls a day! Where's Ron? Turtleman!- Lori Tomlin
Hello Scott and Barbie, Turtleman here, wanted to thank Ron for all the fun nights out. Snorkeling and Fat Tuesday's were great times, Hola, Tequilla, Gracias. It's 6:15 AM, who is he on the phone with? When are we getting the water turned on?
"Amigos, drop to your knees!" Fat Tuesday's-Tequilla, Banana Banshees, and Blue Hawaiians. It's Right-Brian Burke and Lori Tomlin relax by the pool in Cancun.

Bottom right- What do you mean it's 3 PM?!

tatoo time! "'Where is Dingdong?" Wake up call #4! "Should we do it?" Thanks for a slammin' vacation!!

-Rhonda Heffelfinger

I hate RUT, he looks like Donatello!! No more Meatloaf please!! Stop yelling Carrie the whole ship hears you!! Justin looks like gumby with Asia on his back. Lori, if the T.V. and lights are on it means the electricity is working!! Scott was more annoying than Rut and Muff. Kentucky wins ' 94 NCAA champ! Jim, I can't get over the size of these sugar packets: and your toes. -Ron Trombino

Hola Jose- what did you put in my strawberry daiqueri? Rhonda, how much heat are you generating? Fat Tuesday's; banana daiqueri's, tatoos & Lori Super deli. How many lighters have you lost, Ron? C-Ya Cancun back to DVC. -Jenni Hansell Mucho cerveza- no more Dos Equis, I want a Corona!! Where are the nobilities? -Nobody knows. I hate Barbie. Paula, did you see that fish?! 1, 2, 3, . . . JUMP! Stop rocking the boat! Fat Tuesday'sBest bar in town. Laboom. Rhonda left me another man! Oh my God there goes Mr. Beautiful! Thanks for a killer vacation!!

A  farewell

We are the class, the class of '9t All so very poor, with one foot out the door: We try to stay on the level Just as Lawhead would want, And with Doyle in the 'basement' Our rumors will be out of this world.

But as Schatschneider beholds Our colors green and gold He ponders for a moment or two. And as his mind fills with delight, Of a dream he saw last night,
When our mascot split in two.
And became Coors gold and the wonderful Bush blue.
Now the Dean has taught us through the years
To think of our actions in spite of our peers. He believes with all his heart
That life is a game, and played fair and square, Will render you fame.
So lets take this advice
Out around the whole world
And bring it right back, as our offspring To their front door.

In Memory Of

The fun-filled school year of 1993-94 has been depressed by the death of several remarkable Delaware Valley College faculty. Health problems and accidents prematurely claimed the lives of Dr. William H. Allison, Dr. Craig Hill, Mrs. Jere Gilbert, and Mr. Paul Schatschneider. All four were of great importance to our school. Although their presence and work will ge greatly missed, their spirits and contributions will be with us forever. In one way or another, they have touched our lives. When they died, part of us died too. All of our heartfelt condolences go to their families who are going through a lot of pains and adjustments. In behalf of Delaware Valley College, I would like to thank Dr. Allison, Dr. Hill, Mrs. Gilbert, and Mr. Schatschneider for their unselfish service to the betterment of our community. May they all rest in peace.

Dr. William H. Allison, Active Gentleman

William H. Allison, Ph.D., 58, the Chairman of the Biology Department and a professor of biology, died September 6, 1993 at Temple University Hospital. A resident of Doylestown, he was an active member of the College and the community for over 20 years.

A graduate of Penn State University, Dr, Allison was a faculty representative to Student Government and advisor to the Biology and Chess clubs. He came to Delaware Valley College in 1968 as an Assistant Professor of Biology.

An active member of the community, Dr. Allison was a founding member of the Doylestown Chess Club and a member of the Bucks County Historical Society, and the Bucks County Conservancy.

Dr. Allison is survived by his wife Evelyn; a daughter, Patricia; and two sons, Timothy and James; and seven grandchildren.

Dr. Craig Hill, Sports Lover

Craig Hill, Ph.D. 48, the Dean of the College, died December 17. 1993. A devout leader and advisor, he undoubtedly helped and encouraged many students during his years here in Dlaware Valley College.

A graduate of the University of Delaware, Dr. Hill started out in this college in 1972 as an Assistant Professor of Animal Science. He was appointed to the position of Associated Dean of Academic Services in 1987 and served until 1989 when he was named Dean of Academic Affairs. Dr. Hill then became the Dean of the College in 1991

An avid sports lover, Dr. Hill was known to be an outstanding athlete and a regular show in a lot of school athletics. He admired students who can juggle their schedule between academics and sports.

Dr. Hill is survived by his wife Jacqueline; two sons, Lance and Ross; his mother Ferne; and sister Zoe.

Mrs. Jere Gilbert, Exceptional Lady And Rider

Mrs. Jere Gilbert had a fine career, filled with many prestigious awards. Mrs. Gilbert started her career at Delaware Valley College in 1992 as an Instructor of Animal Science and assumed the directorship of the Equine Training Program. She was both a competitor and a judge in horse sports.

Among her accomplishments, Mrs. Gilbert received the Virginia Martini and Rossi Award in 1970 for leading lady rider. In 1984 she was voted Horsewoman of the Year by the New Jersey Professional Horseman's Association.

Mrs. Gilbert found happiness in teaching and in seeing students learn and mature from their classes. The saying, "Treat others as you would wish to be treated" can be seen posted at the Equestrian Center which reminds students of Mrs. Gilbert respect for others.

She is survived by her daughter Holly; and her son Pepper.

Mr. Paul Schatschneider, Outstanding Dedication

DVC's Mastermind

AIl of us are born followers. Some will stay as followers for the rest of their lives, while others take a step further and become leaders. A gentleman by the name of George F. West decided to become one of those leaders, and took on the job as the renowned president of Delaware Valley College. The prestige and honor of being a president requires a lot of dedication and hard work. When Mr. West took on the job as president of Delaware Valley College, he, along with numerous newly elected presidents from colleges and universities all over the country, attended an intense week long seminar workshop at Harvard University. President West describes his job as a very significant and serious responsibility. As president, he believes that the progress of students into well-rounded, well-educated practitioners is the college's main priority. Accomplishing this goal can be very demanding and pleasing as well. President West enjoys the challenge because he sees the students developing and learning during their years in college.

President West is particularly proud to be the leader of Delaware Valley College because of its reputation as a close-knit institution. To him, the small college atmosphere promotes better relationships between students and professors. Teachers will know their students' first names and their hopes by the time they graduate. This relationship that exists between Delaware Valley College faculty and students is mutually beneficial. Teachers touch the future through the input and influence they provide their students. who, in turn, use them to make a difference in tomorrow's world.

As we know, 1996 is the centennial anniversary of Delaware Valley College, and President West is focusing on the college's future and its continuing progress. Establishment of buildings for both classrooms and dorms is under study. Second, the addition of more advanced equipment, particularly scientific equipment for student use, is a major concern. Third, larger endowments or scholarships for students are being planned for the future. President West sees the upcoming centennial anniversary as a great opportunity to address the college's needs to the community. Delaware Valley College is proud to say, "Yes, we have been here for 100 years and our successful graduates have contributed and given a lot back to their communities." President West reminds us that the whole purpose of his job is to continue improving the quality of education that Delaware Valley College can offer its students.

Aside from leading Delaware Valley College, President West also manages to find time to teach a business course. Why does the President teach at the same time? Mr. West explains, "Learning is mutual. I learn from my students as they learn from me." He also believes that teaching is the best way to get involved with the students and to see the success of the college as a learning institution. Delaware Valley College is very lucky to have such a dedicated and caring leader as President West.

To the graduating Class of 1994, President West extends his utmost congratulations and best of luck. He also gives the graduating class a special message of taking what you have gained from Delaware Valley College and using it to benefit everyone. "Do not take the talent you have gained and bury it. Take the talent you obtained, expand, develop, and utilize it!"'

Helping Is Our Business

TThe Division of Academic Support Services at Delaware Valley College provides a wide spectrum of student support programs designed both to enhance student's chances of success during their college experience, and to develop the improtant skills necessary to identify career and life paths. The Division of Academic Support Services oversees: the Learning Center, ACT 101, and the Office of Career Services.

The Learning Center is an important program designed to offer academic support, encouragement, review, and practice. Tutoring is provided to students free of charge as needed. Peer Tutors, successful students, offer individual and group assistance.

ACT 101 is a state-funded program sponsored by the Higher Educational Equal Opportunity Program (ACT 101) of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The program provides supportive services such as tutoring, advising, and counseling to incoming students who demonstrate the motivation, potential, and initiative to succeed. To be eligible for program services, a student must be a fulltime resident of Pennsylvania and must meet certain economic and academic eligibility criteria.

The Office of Career Services is an integral part of the academic support services offered to Delaware Valley College students. The primary goal of the Career Services staff is to help students develop the important life skills necessary to identify their career path and ultimately enter a meaningful and productive career.
A special feature of Delaware Valley College and one of the reasons for a strong placement record the College enjoys is the Employment Program requirement. As a requirement for graduation, degree candidates in all majors must complete 24 weeks ( 960 hours) of work in jobs directly related to their major field of study.

Other services provided by the Office of Career Services include on-campus recruiting, job listings for full and part-time positions, a comprehensive career library, individual and group career counseling, and on-going workshops which include resume writing, career decision making, job search techniques. interviewing skills, and financial planning.

Easy Money

I$n$ the school year of 1993-94 eighty six percent of the student body received a total of $$ 11,200,000$ in scholarships and grants, in loans, and in employment. At Delaware Valley College there is no shortage of financial aid for each student. Students can get financial assistance from several college programs:

1. Faculty Scholarships are open to all applicants. Scholarships are based on student's level of academic standing.
2. Faculty Grants open to all applicants are based on students level of academic standing.
3. Endowment Scholarships are offered to students based on their academic performance, financial need, and involvement in the college community.
4. DVC Grants are given to students based on financial need, academic performance, and contributions to the college community. 5. College Employment is open to all interested students.

In addition to these college supported programs, students can get financial aid from federal, state, and private programs. The options and choices are unlimited. All the students have to do is get out and see what's available to their specific need.

Agribusiness

Agribusiness majors have a wide variety of opportunities. These students learn a mixture of agriculture and business. They take courses that range from Applied Animal Nutrition to Accounting and Production Management. Agribusiness majors also prepare to deal with government businessmen. They take a weekend field trip to Washington D.C. to meet with the congressman or businessman of their choice. Agribusiness employs nearly one fourth of the work force in the United States. This major prepared students for the world after graduation.

Agronomy & Environ.

Agronomy and Environment Science Department gives the student a broad background in the plant, soil, turf, or environmental sciences. Focus is placed on the environmental issues facing society today, and the knowledge and training necessary to deal with these complex problems. More and more students are entering the department, which is finishing up its sixth year at the college and growing to be one of the strongest disciplines. Entering into the twenty-first century, the graduates from this close-knit department will be on the cutting edge of their departments.

Animal Science

The Animal Science majors get to go through a wide variety of experiences. They learn to castrate pigs, give injections to cows, and mark the animals for identification. With their hands on experience it is easier for students to compete in the job market. By the time they finish their course work at DVC, students can manage their own animal facility for research or for the food industry. They can also continue their education at a graduate school or veterinary school. There are many options available to someone with an Animal Science major.

Animal Science-Equine

Since I was a kid, I was crazy about horses. When I heard about the equine science program, I knew that this was the right major for me. Although I'm just a freshman, I feel that I already learned a lot of things about horses. I had the opportunity to deal with stallions, foals, pregnant mares, and horses with really different personalities. Because experience is one of the most important aspects in horsemanship, all of the equine students spend a lot of time at the equestrian center. The students have to work really hard in this program, but I don't think that there is a better major for horse lovers. We all have a great time, and it is worth all the hard work!

Biology

I have always wanted to be a doctor ever since I was a little kid. As I went through my elementary, middle, and high school years, my desire to become a doctor intensified. By my senior year, I knew that I wanted to major in Biology. DVC's Biology program is one of the best. During the Spring 1993 Open House, I met some of the professors. I was really surprised at how friendly everyone was. Biology involves the study of living things and how they function. The combined lecture and lab experience gives me a deep knowledge of how biology directly affects my everyday life. With a degree in Biology, I plan to go on to graduate school and fulfill my dream of becoming a doctor.

Business Administration

Ever since high school, I knew I had the gift for gab, but some people thought it was more of a curse than a gift. That is when I became interested in sales and dealing directly one on one with the public. My major is about everday life, and the typical things involved in business life. My major is also about people interacting with each other. I feel that our teachers and professors are very down to earth and easily approachable. They are extremely helpful in solving our problems, be they academic or personal. I'm happy that I'm a marketing major, and I would encourage other majors to experience a course in business administration.

Chemistry

Chemistry majors can tell you that, not only does the hands-on experience you get during labs educational, it is also very exciting and explosive. As a chemistry major, a student can minor in any other major. A "premed" chemistry major is another option which provides excellent preparation for the MCAT's. This major is accredited by the American Chemical Society and graduates with a major in chemistry will be certified by the A.C.S. Internships with nearby companies allow students to participate in real-life on-the-job applications of classroom theory while still under graduates.

CISM

I chose Delaware Valley College because of the school's outstanding reputation in the field of computer programming. With Dr. Lazarus heading up the department, the curriculum is well balanced and has very useful applications in today's job market. The appropriate choice of a college and a career are perhaps two of the most important decisions a young person is required to make in today's highly competitive world. ## Time And Change Bring Dedicated students put in a lot of precious time, sweat, and hard work to build a simple agricultural equipment for one of their classes.

Imagine everyone in the school getting up at $5: 45$ in the morning to a "rising bell" and starting the day at 6:00 sharp. In addition, everyone eats at 7:00, go to work or class from 7:30 to 12:00, have lunch at 12:00, go back again to work or class at 1:00 until 5:00 in the afternoon. Then everyone has an hour break to clean up and go to dinner at 6:00 for an hour. Study session begins at 7:00 until 9:00. Finally, everyone goes to bed at 9:30. Sounds very dull and tiring doesn't it? Well, this was the daily program for each day, Monday to Friday, that the National Farm School students had to go through. The National Farm School is the forerunner of Delaware Valley College. It was founded in 1896 by Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, and was then a three year school of agriculture.

Thank goodness we are living in the nineties because having a strict program to follow would have been torture both to the mind and body. How did those students survive that kind of schedule? I guess back then, that was the only way they knew how to live. systematic and hard working. As you can see there is a very huge difference between how students live then and how we live now. In the same token, our school made enormous advances with regards to requirements for admission, curriculum, and student activities.

Remember the process every single one of us has to go through to find the right college, talking to guidance counselors, looking at brochures and catalogues, and visiting to name a few. Finally, when we choose Delaware Valley College. we go on to the next steps which are making sure we can afford it and we can meet its requirements for admission. The college looks at our record of academic work, grade point average, and S.A.T. Sometimes the school also looks àt our extra curricular activities, achievement tests, essays, and interviews. And when we meet the requirements and somehow pay the tuition, we are home free. All we have to do is go to school, have fun, and occasionally study.

Well, our counterparts, those who attended the National Farm School, faced equivalent provisos. although some of them 1 find rather amusing. For admission, an applicant must be above sixteen years of age and not over twentyone. He must accompany his application with a school certificate as to his education. which must include a complete elementary course of study in Arithmetic, History, Geography and English. In addition, he must pass an examination on such subjects as a graduate from the 8th grade of the public schools should be prepared to know. The applicant must be in good health. A practicing physician must fill out the blank designated for that purpose in the application. Tuition and board are furnished by the school to all students.
In addition to the requirements for admimssion, students had a list of required clothing. For example students must have one heavy overcoat, one heavy sweater, one school suit, two pairs overalls, two pairs khaki trousers, two jumpers, three suits heavy underwear, six suits light underwear, one work hat, one dozen white handkerchiefs, half dozen colored handkerchiefs, etc.

A big part of attending college is living away from home. We all look forward to meet our roommate and to live a dorm life. Delaware Valley College has two, three, four men dorms. Each dorm has a faculty and student resident assistants. At present, DVC has a very light rule about the maintenance of rooms. Back then, each dormitory is in charge of a governor. The buildings contain ninety individual rooms, furnished with light. steam heat, and ample ventilation. In addition to these individual rooms, there are two wards and a farmhouse dormitory, from which new students are gradually advanced into individual rooms as vacancies occur. Each student is required to air and make his bed. and keep his room in perfect order

As I mentioned earlier, the Na tional Farm School was a three year agricultural school. It also started as an all male school. The school had one particular purpose of affording young men an opportunity to study practical and scientific agriculture for agricultural careers.

What would a college be without extra curricular activities? Right now DVC students can choose and enjoy a wide variety of student activities. We have organizations from fraternities to block and bridle to pre-vet club and many others. We also have an outstanding athletic department. The College is a member of the NCAA, Division III, MAC, and ECAC. Inter collegiate sports are offered for both male and female athletes. Sports for men include baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf, soccer, track and field and wrestling. Women compete in basketball. cross country. field hockey, softball, track and field and volleyball.

National Farm School student activities included a literary society, athletics, consisting of football and baseball, musical clubs and the school paper. The Gleaner. During those days the principal focus was education.

By Leilani Lavin

The difference between the first class of the National Farm School and the current Delaware Valley College is enormous. The transition from an agricultural school to a diverse college is probably the biggest change and accomplishment of the college. People then did not do to much in a way of living. Majority became farmers and did not need much luxury to live comfortably. Now, people live in a world that is changing every second and is very technically advance. With this change, people need a more broad and challenging education in order to compete in the job market and to live comfortably. And our school, Delaware Valley College is doing excellent work to meet this change and to prepare its students to meet this world of challenges.

Modern technology provides agricultural students with machinery which can do work more rapidly and effectively. Dustin Heeter is a junior this year and works down at farm 3 as a herdsperson.

Education

Remember that elementary teacher you made a special Valentine for? Or how about your tenth grade English teacher who helped you to believe in yourself and get into college? Del $V a l$ has moved far from the start by now educating its students to become these special people. The education program officially started in the 1992-1993 school year. After only one year, it is growing strong and has put students out into the community's classrooms.

Becoming a teacher is not just gaining a mastery of a specific field, such as business, math, or science. Students also have to learn about different cultures, disabilities, psychology, methods of teaching, methods of testing, and more! Besides the required classroom time, students have to put in a minimum of thirty hours observing current high school teachers and their students. Sometimes they are even allowed to teach the class. Eventually, they have to student teach. This is an entire semester of proving themselves as

English

The English Department at DVC has been wonderful and supportive since I became an English major in 1992. Reading had never been a pastime, but this changed dramatically during my first two years at Dal Val . The professors made the literature interesting, and they showed new angles to the subject. The classroom atmosphere was on a more equal standing than I was used to; my opinions were important. English literature became my love! This major taught me how to create new worlds and thoughts for myself every time I open a novel. For all of this, I am eternally grateful.

effective teachers, showing what they have learned, and being critiqued by their mentor teacher.

The education program even has a professional group on campus. Student Pennsylvania State Educator's Association (PSEA) and the National Education Association (NEA) have an active club on the Del Val campus. Through the organization education majors teach the students on campus about issues such as AIDS and illiteracy. They also spend time working in the community with children and young adults. Sponsoring lectures and programs helps them become educated leaders and better teachers.

Food Science

Students in this department specialize in etther Food Science/Technology or Food Service Systems Management. Food Science is the application of chemistry, microbiology, physics, and engineering to food systems. Graduates in this field work for food products or ensuring the safety and quality of existing ones. Food Service Systems are restaurants and dining facilities in schools, health care, recreation, and transportation facilities, and work places. Graduates work as manager, inspectors, or sales representatives for industry suppliers.

Horticulture

This major has undergone many improvements in the past years. Horticulture is and integral part of agriculture, because of the growing need for more sustainable practices in all aspects of agriculture. The three specialties within Horticulture are: Production and Marketing, Plant Science and Biotechnology, and Sustainable Agriculture/Plant Protection. These specialties have helped the Horticulture students at DVC to refine their interests and specify their knowledge to aid in the search of jobs. The hands-on experience in addition to the lectures further help the Del Val students in the Horticulture Department to grow in the future.

Liberal Arts

Ups And Downs Of Teaching

Finding the right career can sometimes be a nightmare. Other times it can be as enjoyable as eating ice cream. A professor of psychology, Dr. Roberta Dimond always knew that she wanted to be a teacher. Born in Bakersfield, California, Dr. Dimond pursued her career by attending such outstanding schools as Stanford and Penn.

She got her first crack in teaching at Kameehameha in Hawaii, where she taught English and social studies. In addition to teaching, Dr. Dimond also coached the tennis team, which, by the way, is her favorite pastime. She is a great tennis player and played pros at one point in her life. Her brother, Dennis Ralston, coached Cris Evert Lloyd and Gabriella Sabatini, who as you tennis fanatics know, are great champions in tennis.

However, teaching is still number one of Dr. Dimond's priorities. The satisfaction she gets from teaching comes from seeing her students' growth and change througiout college. Many times, teaching gives her a lot of joy, but there are times when being a teacher just stinks.

Sometimes teaching can be really dull. So, to solve this problem, Dr. Dimond relates her lectures to different characters she creates to help students remember. If any of you have taken any of her classes, you know what Dr. Dimond's memory tricks are. In addition, part of being a teacher is knowing that you cannot help everyone. There is always going to be someone who will not let himself be reached. Dr. Dimond says, "Frustration comes when I see a young student with great potential just go down the drain because of a lack of direction and guidance."

Another source of grief in teaching is knowing that not all students will like their teacher. Most teachers hope that all their students will like them, but Dr. Dimond explains, "As a teacher, you have to realize that if you get a good percentage of your students to like you, that's the best you can do." So being a teacher has its ups and downs, just like everything else in life.

As a professor in college. Dr. Dimond cannot help but notice the many problems facing today's youths. She believes that the greatest problem is the sexual crisis. Dr. Dimond thinks that sex is not only distracting, but also a source of many hardships. She advises that youths should learn to deal and cope with the issue of AIDS. Having sex with the wrong person at the wrong time could mean death. Dr. Dimond believes that wholesome family values and religious affinity would alleviate this problem.

A teacher that goes by the saying, "Good judgment comes from experience, and experience comes from bad judgement," and whose favorite movie is Ferris Bueller's Day Off, should definitely be part of our Del Val family.

A Place Of Wealth

By: Leilani Lavin

As a typical incoming college freshman, I had my sights on, not studying hard and getting up at 8:00 a.m., but on having a good time and staying up until the wee hours of the morning. I wanted to be with the "in crowd". I did not want to be identified with the geeks who are always seen with books under their armpits and who are in the library half their life. I always had the impression that the library is a melancholy place inhabited by geeks and grumpy, stone-faced librarians.

All of my disillusions vanished when one day I found myself in the library for my New Student Seminar class. I found myself gaping at the beautiful architecture and the enchanting sculptures and paintings decorating the memorial room of the Joseph Krauskopf Memorial Library.

The pleasant atmosphere and friendly librarians stirred my interest in the library, which led me to write this article. I bugged every single librarian about the library until they sent me to Mrs. Mary Jane Sergeant who is in charge of the library archives. From her I learned about the founder, Dr. Krauskopf, andthe history of the library.
"He was a truly remarkable m a n ,
were the first words Mrs. Ser-

Mrs. Sergeant
geant said to me when I inquired about Dr. Krauskopf. Dr. Joseph Krauskopf was a devout humanitarian all his life. At the tender age of fourteen, he came to America to pursue a better life. Having nothing, he worked at a tea merchant's shop until he was able to go to school. An excellent student, young Krauskopf graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1883. He was also ordained a Rabbi at the Hebrew Union College.

The story of the library is just as worth while as the story of its founder. When Dr. Krauskopf died, he left in his will a clause stating microfilms, microfiches, infotract, and computers to speed up the process of learning.

We have come a long way since the beginning. However, some things just never change, like before the library is still the school's center of intellectual life; the place for developing proper reading instincts and the basis for cultural expansion. It is still the place where students get together to study for tests, to exchange that he hoped when the school could afford to build a replica of his own library, for the housing of his books, the Board would do so, and perhaps a larger library might be added to it. In recognition of all the accomplishments of his honorable man, the Board of Trustees did so with enthusiasm.

The Krauskopf Memorial Library and Forum building resulted in 1924. The library contains an exact reproduction of Dr. Krauskopf's study wherein he wrote his famous sermons. Here, in a specially built shrine, rests an urn containing his ashes. A tablet expresses the love and reverence of the Board of Trustees. In 1969 the Samuel Cooke and Harry Shapiro wings and periodical section were added.

The original library contained over 10,000 volumes. Nowadays, the library contains 73,000 books. The library is also equipped with knowledge, and to share daily experiences. In short, it is a haven for students hungry to learn.

I think this is the perfect time to honor and thank the man responsible for starting all of the benefits from which we are now blessed. Without Dr. Krauskopf's dream and persistence, we would not be here to enjoy anything. Thanks to all the librarians who stay there hour after hour ready to assist any lost soul find their way back. And thanks to all the students who keep patronizing and using the library to their advantage. You, the students, are the real reason behind the growing history of our library.

A: 1957
Q: What was the college like back then?
A: All male; strictly agricultural sciences; small classes; fewer majors; no large classrooms or lab buildings.
Q: What do you miss most?
A: The Summer Field Practical Experience, students were required to spend a period of time during the summer working out in their field of study.
Q: What do you think has changed the most on campus?
A: The level of education; there are more majors on campus some of which are not even sciences.
Q: If you could change anything on campus, what would it be?
A: Like to see the college stay at the level it is at: emphasize quality not quantity: improve educational resources like the library and laboratory facilities.
Q: What do you do when you are not teaching?
A: Administer the department at the college; read; hands on work such as construction and mechanical repairs; canoeing, gackbacking, scuba diving, parachuting, and teaching survival training.

Showing,

Judging,

Promoting

Getting Involved...

By: Jen Reynolds

When you walk up to the Block & Bridle table on club night to see smiling faces and Caesar the ram, you get a glimpse of the fun you can have when you join B & B. If you look at the pictures on display and page through the scrapbook you'll get even more of an idea.

Del Val's Block & Bridle club focuses on the livestock industry in breeding, health, production and show aspects. The club has always been extremely active and this year has been no exception. B & B sponsors several trips including visits to the races and to the cowtown rodeo. Guest speakers come in periodically to discuss new innovations as well as job opportunities in the livestock industry. Several of our members have even received the opportunity to help out handling the animals at the Eastern National Livestock Show Judging Contest.

The club has also been involved in many promotional exhibits to help educate the public about beef, sheep and swine. Members have even gone to local 4-H meetings to share some of their knowledge and experience with others.

Annual highlights include the Block & Bridle homecoming float, ham sale, and A-day. A-day especially keeps members busy. The club organizes the A-day livestock show where Del Val students get a chance to participate in some friendly competition in fitting and showing the college animals. B & B sponsors the pork BBQ booth featuring fresh homemade BBQ sandwiches you won't want to miss. They also prepare an exhibit every year highlighting one of the livestock species and their place in agriculture.

Whether its in a promotion booth, showing cattle, or cutting up pork, Block & Bridle members are always busy working to promote the industry and the college. In addition to all the hard work comes a lot of fun and friendships that can last forever. By the end of the year you will realize that you've come far since that first club night.

Voices Of Chorale

A Personal View

By: Amy Webb

A$s$ a freshman, one never knows what clubs to choose from or how many to join. I can remember the summer before I started at DVC, I received a letter from the DVC Chorale Society. They had contacted me to see if I wanted to join. That had made me feel so special.

That was only the beginning. The first semester we sang for Homecoming, Family Day, and put on our own Christmas Concert. Our latest Family Day theme was "Oklahoma!" and our Christmas Concert included many different Christmas traditions, such as kid's songs, Silent Night sung in German, and Hava Naigila.

The second semester is even more hectic with our spring concert, Founder's Day, Graduation, and a musical for A-Day. Without a doubt, the most important part of Chorale is that we are truly a family. But we are always looking for new members.

DVC FFA

Planning For The Future

The Delaware Valley Collegiate FFA is open to all DVC students who are enrolled in agriculture courses or who are pursuing a career in the agriculture industry. This year the club has 20 members. The 1993-94 officers are: James Bane, President; Wayne Hassinger, Vice President; Sharon Harnish, Secretary; Karen Callahan, Treasurer; Michael Cornman, Reporter; Robin Boreman, Sentinel; Sharon Harnish and Shane Bane, ICC Representatives; Shane Bane and Ken Harman, A-day Representatives; and Mr. Don Claycomb, Advisor.

In October, FFA sponsored a Fall Career Day for high school FFA members. Sixty members from eastern Pennsylvania attended the one day conference. Mr. Liam Brody, 1993-94 National FFA Vice President, presented a speech on careers in Agriculture. The students then toured the campus and talked with the chairperson of each department.

On November 11-13, 1993, ten club members attended the Na tional FFA Convention in Kansas City, Missouri. These members had the opportunity to attend a career show. The show had over 230 exhibits, ranging from trucks to tractors and computers to candy. Many businesses were on hand to talk with students about future careers in Agriculture. Each general session of the convention featured a speaker. Some of the speakers included: Miss America 1994, Kimberly Aiken; Mike Espy, United States Department of Agriculture; Baxtor Black, Cowboy Humorist; and John Holliman, CNN Reporter. While in Kansas City, the group attended the American Royal and watched a rodeo.

Collegiate FFA holds regular meetings twice a month. New members are always welcome!

'94 Bowl-A-Thon

 Money Used For Memorial By- Suanne SladekThis year's bowl-a-thon was a huge success! Taking place on March 29, 1994 at Doylestown Lanes, twenty-four clubs were represented and over one-hundred-thirty bowlers participated. The most money raised by an individual was $$ 127.00$ by Jen Reminger from the Environmental Awareness Club helping her club to raise the most money (197.00) by a club. The Block and Bridel team of John O'Neil, Wendy Jesiolowski, Todd Hofsaess, Danyele Pino, Dustine Heeter, and Chris Wojciechowski bowled the highest team score and Alpha Phi Omega was awarded most team participation. Over $1,300 was raised from the bowl-a-thon, and it has been decided by ICC to be used towards a memorial tree for the deceased members of DVC's staff, faculty, and student body.

Competing Around The Country

Travelling With The 1993 Livestock Judging Team

In livestock judging there is a class of four animals (beef, sheep or swine species), and these animals are placed on their merit as a market or breeding animal. Oral reasons must also be given for some classes, stating the reasons why a contestant placed a class a certain way. All of this is done from memory.

The 1993 Livestock Judging Team started off the year by coming back to DVC a week early and practicing judging and visiting farms to see a variety of animals.

There was a practice run at the Maryland State 4-H contest and the rest of the semester was spent going from contest to contest. We went to Massachusettes to the Eastern States Exposition (The Big E), to Maryland to the Eastern National Contest, practice session at Ohio State, and the Keystone International Competition in Harrisburg, PA. The highlight of the semester was a week long trip in November to Louisville, Kentucky for the North American International Livestock Exposition which was also the national collegiate contest. There were more than 35 teams from Texas to Oregon and close to 200 competitors.

The coach of the Judging Team is Mr. Gilbert, manager of Farm 3. He was a member of the UCONN Judging Team while in college. This past season was his 21 st year coaching the DVC Judging Team.

We had our ups and downs this season, but a couple of high points are: placing higher than Virginia Tech at Keystone, being high team at Eastern Nationals, and being 5th high team in Suffolk judging at the national contest.

Writing To Inform

Ram Pages Moves Into The Future

By: Charlotte M. Walker

The Delaware Valley College student newspaper, Ram Pages, has undergone a tremendous transformation in the past few years. Starting in December of 1991, the Newspaper went through many changes and reorganization. Since that time the Ram Pages is a far distance from the 3-4 page newsletter format that began the reformation of the DVC Ram Pages.

The Ram Pages is the voice of the students of DVC and provides information to the entire Del Val community. The Doylestown residents also benefit from the information shared in the Ram Pages through our distribution in key areas of town. The Newspaper addresses the concerns of the students and keeps the campus apprised of upcoming events. The Ram Pages is a very unique form of communication on the DVC campus, even considering that a Journalism or Communication major does not exist at DVC. With our limited resources and staff, we try to supply insightful articles about the life of the DVC student body, discussion of important issues, information and spotlights on certain faculty members.

The Ram Pages provides a great opportunity for Del Val students to work as a team member towards common goals. Students of all different majors work on the Newspaper for a wide variety of reasons. It is a good place to gain work experience, but to also have some fun along the way. Writing, photography, advertising, business, layout, and computers are some of the many facets that are utilized and needed to produce a Newspaper of this scale on a biweekly basis.

Our staff takes pride in our dedicated work on the Ram Pages and also acknowledges the cooperation that we receive from the students, faculty, and administration of DVC. The submission of articles and information aids our creation of the Newspaper.

Chip Campbell and Carey Mingoa-"Are you sure its safe to sit up here?"

Finally, the Ram Pages wishes to pass along our desire for excellence through our saying, "constantly work to improve the paper' and we hope that our motivation will help the students to reach their future goals and aspirations once they leave DVC.

Knowledge, Rewards & Laughs

SAC Provides The Fun!

By: Angel Werner

The Student Activities Committee has come very far from the start of the semester. The year was kicked off at the "Welcome Back" dance in September with record attendance. The success continued through the array of new events from "You Laugh, You Lose" Comedy Game Show to the many rock bands that now hold fame on our campus.

The 1993-94 year also saw the first ever SAC Homecoming Candidate, Lisa Tomascik, take her place as First Runner-Up in the Homecoming Court.

Another tremendous success this year was the start of the VIP program in which distinguished faculty, staff, and administration were recognized through their induction into this elite group.

Aside from the hilarious comedy acts, rockin' bands, and various special events, SAC has made tremendous strides to diversify programming and hit on sensitive issues facing college students today. Among these events were "Power Plays", "Footsteps into Change", "Cry Freedom", and Jack Gladstone.

I think everyone would agree, however, that the most memorable event this year was the Homecoming Pep Rally featuring Dave Binder. This Del Val favorite is always a big hit with students, alumni, and faculty alike.

SAC has worked very hard to cater to the needs of the students and as a result, this was one of the best years ever!

Smiles on the faces of Del Val students is living proof of the Student Activities Comittee's success.

Change Leads To Success

TAG Taps Into Theater

TAG (Theater Arts Group) is a group of students who get together to share a common interest-acting. But the students do not merely preform their shows, they preform them with a twist of humor and a dash of fun.

The group was reformed recently by Deborah Glicklick and is now under the direction of Mary Jo Hebling. TAG has made an incredible leap from the small group it once was. Among their accomplishments one particular show stands out. "Joshua: A Fairy Tale turned upside down" was preformed on Family Day and turned out to be a huge success. The show was derived from "Cinderella," but was modified with TAG members own creativity. Cinderella became Joshua, and the stepsisters were actually stepbrothers. The play was made modern-day, and adapted to western scenes. The club even preformed the 38 step on stage. Family Day participants were thoroughly entertained.

In the future, TAG members plan to preform "Clown's Play" by Reginold J. Bain. They will be expanding their audience to local elementary schools with this preformance, spreading their enthusiasm and love of theater to the younger generation.

Leadership, Friendship And Service

Promoting The Values Of Alpha Phi Omega

By: Dlane Yoder

AIpha Phi Omega is a co-educational, national service fraternity promoting the principles of leadership, friendship and service. It was founded nationally in 1925 and is open to all college students. The Sigma Nu chapter here at Del Val was founded in 1967.

Alpha Phi Omega has participated in many service projects. These projects have included being designated drivers for other greek organizations on campus, helping with Halloween Haunting II, being players and bankers for the Monopoly Tournament, and helping the Environmental Awareness Club with their Adopt-A-Highway project, as well as many various community organizations such as Bucks County big brothers/big sisters and the Vietnam Veterans

One activity that the brothers have participated in and is becoming an annual event is the spring clean-up at St. Mary's Villa for children. After clearing away dead limbs we enjoyed a picnic provided for us by the sisters of the Villa.

Participating in Alpha Phi Omega is a rewarding and enjoyable experience. It provides the brothers with a sense of accomplishment as they help others within the organization, campus and community. Our love of service is catching as we are continuing to grow by having new students join us each semester.

Down But Not Out

Aggies Still Dedicated

Right: Coach Al Black showing members of the offensive line what they need to do in the next series of the game.

The DVC'Aggies were filled with high hopes for the '93 season. The young team who touted their potential for greatness at the beginning of the season were disappointed on many occasions as some close games did not result in their favor. The team finished 2-8 overall and 2-3 in the MAC-Freedom League.

The Aggies big win of the season came on Homecoming Day against Kings's College in a stunning 55-31 victory. Their other win occured in a verydramatic game against Upsala on the rainiest day of the football season. This $24-20$ victory gave the team motivation for the remaining two games of the season. Senior team captains included Brian Fricker, Mike Cliver, and Neil Stamy. The other senior players were: Brian Kain, Mike Savare, Tony Ventresca, Shawn Garrick, Dennis Gillen, Junior Hyman, Joe Crea, Andy Sgarra, and J.R. Meo.

The team was led by junior quaterback Ray Savage, until his injury in the Upsala game. At that point, freshman secondstring quaterback, Brandon Martin stepped in to lead the Aggies. Unfortunately, he was also forced to leave the field due to an injury. Then, thirdstring quaterback Todd Van Orden took the command and also was the place kicker.

The Aggies were honored by having five of their players named the MAC-Freedom League All-Star Team. Brian Fricker was named as a First-Team All-Star. Fricker recorded yardage in seven different categories and led the Aggies with 441 rushing yards and by gaining 1020 allpurpose yards. Mike Cliver, Neil Stamy, Walt Tobash, Todd Van Orden were honored by being picked as Second Team

All-Stars.

The Aggies led by Head Coach Bill Manlove, will look for strongly desired improvements next year. To summarize the 1993 season, it is fitting to close with the words of Coach Manlove as he has stated, "A challange is still a challenge - we just have a lot of work to do."

Giving It Their All

Ihis season was an outstanding and memorable one for the men's soccer team. Led by Coach Hedden and Coach Freudig and captains Eric Skillman and Ryan Sweeney, they recorded the best record in the men's soccer program's history. They finished with a 8-6-4 record which is the second winning season DVC has had since 1976 when the soccer program began.

The team has had the most records broken, the most wins, ties, and consecutive shut outs in its history. They progressed from 8th to 4th place in the Middle Atlantic Conference. In the 17 games played, there were 177 goals shot and only 31 goals given up!

One of the highlights of the season was the game against Drew University With one minute and thirty seconds left to go, the team pulled together to earn a 1-1 tie, which was very unexpected.

The MVP Award was given to captain Eric Skillman. There were two winners for the Best Offensive Player Award, Mark Pither and Chris (Q) Furry. Chris (Q) Furry tied the all mark record by scoring 8 goals, and Mark Pither set the season scoring record for '93 with 9 goals. The Best Defensive Player Award was given to Donny Rohrbough. He also was awarded the All MAC First Team. Chuck Curry recieved All MAC Honorable Mentioned.
Coach Hedden's goal for the '94 season is to continue the growth and improvement of the team. He is also intrested in aiding the growth of the women's soccer program.

Congratulations team on all your hard work and dedication. We're looking foward to an even better season next year!

Racing To The Finish Line

Br. Coach Berthold

The men's 1993 cross country team experienced one of their best seasons in recent years. They finished the season at six and one. losing only one meet to Albright in a close game. The team also won the Philadelphia College of the Bible Invitational. This is only the second time in the history of the sport that a men's team has won an invitational meet. In the Conference Championship the team was fifth, and they finished a respectable sixteenth in the NCAA Division III Regional Championship meet.

Varsity runners were Bill Toepliz, Mike Kiefer, Breck Vanderwende, Pete Oesen, and Chuck Holliday. Oesen completed four years as a varsity runner and was co-captain his senior year. He was the team's number two scorer, and he finished an impressive fourteenth place in the conference championship meet. For his dedication and performance, he was awarded the 1993 Coach's Award. Senior co-captain Chuck Holliday also had an exceptional year. He went undefeated in dual meet competition. He earned medals in each of the four invitationals he ran in, winning two of them. He finished fourth in the MAC championships and sixteenth in the NCAA Division III Regional Championship. For his outstanding performance, he was voted Most Valuable Harrier by his teammates and coaches.

After four consecutive losing seasons, the lady runners achieved a winning season at 4 and 3 . The team was led by seven freshmen plus a number of upperclassmen. Running varsity for the team were senior Jenn Orlowsky, junior Jacyui Lorenz, freshmen Lexi Lomis, Vicky Virkaitis, Michelle Grahm, and Liz Howard. In addition to their winning season, the ladies also won the Philidelphia College of the Bible Invitational. This is the first invitational won by a ladies cross country team in the history of the sport at DVC.

For her four years of varsity service and as captain, Jenn Orlowsky was honored with the Coach's Award. (Continued on p. 101)

A Young Team Provides Bright Future

Bv. Varla Zuarino

Ihe women's field hockey team earned a record of 8-9 overall and $2-3$ in the MAC League. This year's young team was led by co-captains senior Kate Flynn and junior Jen Reynolds. Flynn was the only returning senior and played an outstanding season.

The team experienced manyclose games throughout the season. Coach Fleischerwas pleased with the efforts the team put forth and believes next year looks very prosperous. The team performed solid attacks against their opponents. There were many freshmen who came out to play and are returning next year. Freshman Stephanie Brymesser led the team with 21 points and 9 goals. Sylance Spence, a junior, followed with 19 points and 8 goals.

Player of the Year was awarded to senior Kate Flynn. Offesive Player of the Year went to Sylance. Kristi Cehula, a junior, recieved the Defensive Player of the Year and the MAC-Freedom Leagues All-Stars were Spence and Cehula.

Lady 'Aggies Learn From Losing Season

Despite a 5-19 season, the women's volleyball team improved three games from the year before. They earned a $3-3$ record in the Middle Atlantic Conference. Under the direction of the teams' new coach, Dan Hofstaedter, the team gained their first MAC win. Prior to this season. DVC had not won a MAC match since 1989. It took until the last day to lose to the University of Scranton to be eliminated from playoff contention.

The game against Wilkes University was not only the best and toughest match, but it was the volleyball team first MAC win of the season. The team was down by $2-0$ and came roaring back to take the next three games and the match.
Seniors Vicki Morton and Bev Riker led the team in kill percentage with. 179 and . 297 marks. Riker also had 94 digs and placed second in kills with 78. Juniors Paige Bergey, Paula Musi and Marcia Tsai had 42 digs and 20 service aces while providing the team with solid sets for the hitters. Frshmen Amy Thompson and Marcie Leece finished third and fourth in kill percentage with .180 and. 121 marks

The MVP Award went to senior Vicki Morton. The Most Improved Award was given to Jacy Miller and the Most Dedicated Award went to Candice Feicht

Cheerleaders Show Dance Routines To

The Del Val cheerleaders worked very hard throughout both the football and basketball seasons to keep the spirit up at DVC. While the football team was sweating during practice on the field, the cheerleaders were getting conditioned for new stunts, cheers, chants, and dance routines at camp. During the season the cheerleaders devoted their enthusiasm to the players and fans. They performed at pep rallies and parades as well as the games.

There are several people who helped the cheerleaders behind the scenes. One of them is the advisor, Mrs. Fredrick. The cheerleaders have been improving their stunts to Division I status thanks to another person, their new coach, John Crowe. John was a varsity cheerleader from Temple University who has been to both regionals and nationals. His talent and expertise will definitely get the cheerleaders performing even better for 1994!

Racking Up The Honors

Led by Coach Bob Marshall and cocaptains Kurt Handel and Brandon Totten. the wrestling team earned an exceptional overall record of $13-3$. It was the programs 24th consecutive non-losing season. They placed second in the MAC Championships and were ranked as high as 13th in the nation during the year

Coach Marshall, who has been coaching here for 20 seasons was extremely pleased with the team's determination and individual performances. One of the toughest matches that the team played was against Lycoming College. The team lost by a narrow 21-19 margin which prevented Marshall from winning his 300th career match.

Lone senior co-captain Kurt Handel won the Eastern Regional Crown at 177 pounds. A week later he captured his second consecutive MAC title. This seasonhe earned a 27-2 overall record and boosted his career mark up to 84-22-3. He also qualified to go to Wisconsin for the NCAA Division lll National Championships where his record was 1-2.

Sophomore co-captain Brandon Totten improved his overall mark to 31-3 (27-1 versus Division III wrestlers). Totten took home the Paul Kulentz Award for the most falls in least time. He also qualified for the NCAA Championships where his record was 1-2.

Freshman Jeff Hoopes placed second at Regionals at 118 pounds. He finished the season with a 12-4 mark and took a first-place finish at the MAC's. George Seeger, Neil McCoy, and Jason Corropolese all finished fifth at Regionals. Seger was MAC runner-up at 134 pounds. McCoy, 142 pounds, and Corropolese, 150 poundds, earned third-place medals at the MAC's.

Coach Marshall's goals for the $95^{\prime}$ season is to continue the winning season of the team and to earn his 300 th career match win at the first game next year.

Congratulations team on a a great year and we're all looking forward to an even better season next year.

Expectations Fall Short

 Lack Of Players Hurts Teams EffortsThe DVC men's basketball team ended their season with a 3-21 record. Under head coach Bill Werkiser and co-captains Ryan Buckley and Bill McClafferty, the team worked very hard despite their lack of players which affected their season.

Senior co-captain Ryan Buckley was named 93-94 MAC Freedom League Second Team AllStar. He averaged 19.5 points per game, improved his rebounding from 4.4 to 5.5 per game, and led the team in scoring in 18 of the teams' 24 games. He also placed third on DVC's all-time scoring list with 1,533 points.

Juniors James Godwin and Eric Fisher finished second and third in scoring, averaging 12 and 10 points per game. Fisher

Earning Their Points

Under first year head coach Chris MacBrien and assistant coach Sandra Stoczko, the women's basketball team earned a record of 7-16 overall and a $4-10$ mark in the MAC League.

The game against Holy Family College was the most intense game that the team experienced Despite a 59-81 loss, it was one of the teams best efforts of the season. Co-captain foward/ guard Melanie Falkiewicz came into the game and broke the single scoring record with 36 points
Falkiewicz reached personal highs by being named MAC-Freedom League All-Star. She averaged 18.2 points per game, 58 steals, 56 assists and led the team in scoring 17 of the 23 games. She finished her career as Del Val's sixth All-Team Leading Scorer with 814 points.

Junior guard Kate Monahan was second on the team in scoring 9.7 points per game. 38 steals, and 12 blocked shots. She was second in the MAC's with 44 three-pointers. Sophomore center Rebecca Castor pulled down a career-high of 19 rebounds in an overtime loss versus King's College. Freshman front-courter Marcie Leese led the team with 14 blocks.

The MVP and Best Defensive Award was given to co-captain Melanie Falkiewicz. The Most Improved Award went to Jeanette McBride and The Coaches Award went to Tricia Stabler.

A Season Plagued With Injuries

The Del Val softball team ended their seasonwith a 11-19 overall mark and 7-7 markin the MAC League. It was the second consecutive year that the softball team finished .500 or better in the conference.

During most of the season, the team was plagued with many players that were injured, but that didn't stop the team from pulling together and playing well throughout the season. There were many season records broken along with all-time school records crushed.

Senior Michelle Gulden played throughout the season with a sore wrist which was later diagnosed as broken. She came through and hit .313 with 12 RBI's in 19 games. Junior Joan Thomas started the first 17 games and hit .313 with 10 runs scored and 10 RBI's until she broke her wrist.

One of the most outstanding players of the season was senior center fielder Kelly Sciss. She finished her career as the second all-time leading hitter in the NCAA Division III history with a .473 mark. Sciss finished third all-time in slugging percentage . 782 and in stolen base percentage .966.

She led the team with nine triples, and scored 25 runs for the 1994 season.
Another senior recordbreaker, pitcher Kate Flynn owns the all-time school record for games pitched 55 , wins 20 , and strikeouts 56 . She finished with a 9-12 mark and earned a 5.18 run average.

Sophomore, shortsstop Nikki Roberts led the team in hits 36 . scored 23 runs, and tied for the team-lead with seven doubles. Infielder Kim Evans raked in a teamhigh of 21 RBI's. Freshman catcher Stephanie McCormick was the only player to startall 30 games. She set the seasonal record for at-bats 102, runs scored 31 and tied a school record by scoring five runs in a game.

The Co-Player of the Year and Co-Defensive Player of the Year Award was given to both Kelly Sciss and Kate Flynn. Sciss also took 1st Team All-Star Softball 94'. Offensive Player of the Year was given to Nikki Roberts. Steph McCormick was awarded the Rookie of the Year. Most Improved Player went to Linda Musi. Kim Evan took 2nd Team All-Star Softball $94^{\prime}$.

Giving It Their Best Shot

Under 18 th year manager Frank Wolfgang, the men's baseball team wrapped up the season with a 10-17 overall record and a 5-7 record in the MAC League.

One of the high-lights of the season was the game against Wilkes. The team had to produce a win in order to stay in the MAC playoffs and pulled through beating Wilkes 6-4.

Sophomore outfielder/pitcher Jim DiGuiseppe led the team in the offensive category including batting average 337 hits 31 , runs scored 20 , runs batted in 20, and stolen bases 6. He also had four triples, two home runs and four doubles which led to a teamhigh .533 slugging percentage.

Junior first baseman Dino Mannino batted .307. He led the team with six doubles, scoring 13 times while knocking in 11 runs, committing only one error in 156 chances. Junior starter Steve Hiester struck out 29 and had a 3.46 ERA. Junior Steve Shelly led the team with 35 strikeouts in 49 innings and compiled a 4.74 ERA.

Senior Brian Kain and junior Ray Savage pitched in nine and seven games respectively. Kain, playing his first year of collegiate ball, posted a 4.60 ERA and seven strikeouts in relief. Savage started seven games and struck out 22 batters.

Congratulations to the MVP winner Jim DiGuí seppe, and Best Pitcher Steve Shelly.

Behind The Scenes

By: Tara Grady

Did you ever' wonder who made the sports programs and the media guides? Who told the newspaper about the s wrestling team going to the MAC's? These are theiresponsiblities of the Sports Information Direcotr. Matt Levy. His other responsibilities include keeping track of team records and statistics. 'In order to do all this, Matt works six. days a week, sometimes seven and spends a lot fo time on the road travelling with the teams.

Matt was been working for the college for two years. In his spare time, he enjoys going to the movies, watching professional sports (his favorite being hockey), and playing tennis and basketball. When asked what he thought has $\therefore$ changed the most in his two years here, he believes the number of people around campus has increased and from that number, more are getting involved in the sports program. What would Matt like to see change on campus? He would like to see the teams succeed and extablish greater publicity focusing on the college's sports.

"I'd like to see more publicity so the students can have more school and team spirit.'

Dr Krauskoph most certainly had extra-curricular activities in mind when he founded the National Farm School. These events combined with a college education would enable students to enter society with not only book knowledge but also with the important ability to interact with others.

Although there is not an Earth Day (1970) or senior Wine and Cheese Socials (1980s)
> 'What will the Graduates of the National Farm School do after graduation? When man and beast will give up the bad habit of eating, and the earth the custom of yielding its frarvests, then, and only then, will this question be of concern to me. But as long as man and beast will depend on the cultivation of the soil and on the bredding of stock for their food supplies, so long will the graduates of this school have as good a chance in this world.
-address given by Dr Krauskoph on Sunday, June 20, 1897 at the dedication of the building later known as Pioneer Hall every year, many of the campus activities are as traditional as apple pie. A-Day and Homecoming were as memorable as ever and the sophomore Valentine's Day semi-formal was fun. So even if Halloween Haunting and the Monopoly Tournament are not what Dr Kauskoph had in mind, he would be proud to see students participating in events which benefit both themselves and the entire college community.

For the weekend of October 15, 1993 the campus was transformed into the "Wild West" of years past. While the western theme is a traditional one, many changes were made to enhance the largest event of the fall semester. The Queens' dinner took place Thursday night at the ever popular Warrington Country club with a dance afterward. The pep rally, which used to be held in the gym, moved to Lake Archer and was an enormous success with the help of Dave Binder down at the lake. The Student Activities Committee (SAC) sponsored the annual Binder concert and consider him to be the biggest entertainer they've brought in this year. The parade displayed great ingenuity on the part of the students as their creative spirit cars and floats traveled down the streets of Doylestown. The parade was an exceptional event for all the area residents along with the clubs and organizations who worked hard to facilitate the event. There was a record of 14 floats in the parade surpassing all previous years. In the afternoon the alumni, students, faculty, and friends crowded into James Work Memorial Stadium for the Homecoming football game. The halftime exhibition was highlighted by the crowing of the Homecoming King and Queen. There were 39 nominations for the titles of King and Queen. The six finalists were: Second runner-up David DeFrange, representing the Landscape Nursery Club, and Cindy Blackston, representing the Minority Leaders Coalition. The first runnersup were Kevin Switala, representing (Continned on page 132.)

First place for the Spirit Cars went to the Equine Club, with the Business Club in second place, and Christian Fellowship rounding out the third position. The Block and Bridle Club took first place with their float, Landscape Nursery Club took second place, and tieing for third place were the Horticulture Society and the Dairy Society. To finish up the weekend, there was a DJ and party between Samuel and Goldman dormitories that occurred thanks to the help of Inter Club Council (ICC). This year was definitely the biggest Homecoming in the history of Delaware Valley College. Congratulations to all who helped to make Homecoming 1993, "Welcome to the Wild West" the best Homecoming celebration ever seen on the Del Val campus !

MARIAN CHRISTIAN ('94) AND SCOTT Barnett ('93) from NAMA ride in high style along the parade route. The parade began at C.B. West High School and weaved through the streets of Doylestown for aproximately four miles.

JOHN KARAVIAS, REPRESENTING CHORALE, strides confidently to his waiting vehicle. The Chorale, which performed at halftime, has 37 members ranging from freshmen to senoirs and is advised by Mrs.Joan Roberts.

CHRIS WOJOCIECIIOWSKI ('96) AND WENDY Jesiolowski ( 96 ) team up together at the llomecoming festivities to have a bit of fun. Jesiolowski, all wrapped in toiket paper, and Woiciehowski are often found together and have been iriends since they discovered thier common Polish heritage. Says Jesiolowski abosut their relationship, "Wierder things have happened...UFOs landing on Lake Archer and stuft like that."

REPRESENTING SAC, JUNIOR LISA TOMACIK ENjoys the ride and tries to relax for just a little while. Tomacik is very involved with SAC which requires a lot of her time but Lisa also manages to help out wherever she's needed. Between theses activities, being the R.A. of Ulmann 2 and working, she finds time to study and get good grades with the hopes of becoming a doctor.

Ghosts-Halloween Ghouls or New Hope Inhabitants?

By Marne Sugarman, RAM PAGES Features Editor

Anyone interested in some true-to-life haunts for Halloween? If so, than New Hope is the place to go. New Hope has a rich and colorful history dating back to before William Penn's purchase of Pennsylvania.
Obviously with such antiquity and charm, tourists alone are not the only ones drawn to this quaint village. Ghosts are also said to roam around the streets, courtyards, houses, and shops in New Hope. In fact, books have been written about the hauntings in New Hope, the most haunted town in the state.
Legend and stories are one thing, but seeing is believing.

Although spotting a ghost is not a promise, a visitor can take a tour of the most famous haunted places in New Hope.
The Logan Inn, an inn, restaurant, and bar that predates the Revolutionary War, is the first stop on the ghost tour. The Logan Inn has numerous odd occurrences that simply cannot be explained-strong, fleeting scents of lilacs; the mysterious story of the priceless glass ball; the room where no one will spend a full night are just a few of the strange tales one hears on this tour. To top it off, the Logan Inn's basement was used to store bodies of the slain soldiers from the Civil War until they could be buried. Workers at the Logan Inn, now all believers, reluctantly venture down to the basement to bring up supplies only when they absolutely have to, after seeing things not of this world. The series of underground railroads throughout all of New Hope used to hide slaves also have a freaky story of their own.

On this tour, one will hear the chilling tale of a child's imaginary playmate, only to find that the playmate had been dead for years. The ghost of a young prostitute murdered at the Buckets of Blood brothel (yes, that was it's true name), creates mis chief in the building now occupied by particular shops and apartments on Mechanic Street.
Why is it immpossible for people to photograph the child's room on the upper level of the Benjamin Parry Mansion, an eighteenth century home, now a museum of decorative arts on main Street? And why did it miraculously photograph when a person asked for the spirit's permission?
The sighting of the ghostly hitchhiker, seen all over the remote Bucks County roads, protects the tired, orinebriated driver coming home late at night. The hitchiker was killed in a motorcycle accident (continued on page 136.)

inebriated driver coming home late at night. The hitchhiker was killed in a motorcycle accident coming home from from a party late one night in 1972. He is seen wearing long flaxen hair and a tan buckskin outfit, and hopes to prevent others from the same fate that happened to him.
Are these stories meaning less, or could there be some truth to them? People have thorooughly researched these stories, divulging history buried for decades, if not centuries. They have also talked to some historians and senior citizens that have lived in New Hopeall of their lives. The main question on the lips of the people interviewed was, "How did you find that out."

Yes, all of the stories on the tour have been backed by evidence, but are they really ghosts? Well, the only way is to decide for yourself. Ghost tours meet on the corner of Main and Mechanic Strees, by the canon, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:00. The cost for the tour is $$ 6.00$. Halloween weekend would be a great time to take this frightfully interesting tour, but do not get too involved; remember, just a few hours later you have to go to sleep...

Student Govermment sponsored the semi-formal banquet and thanks to a lot of hard work on the part of senior Mike Vecchio and several other dilligent individuals it was a tremendous success. One student remarked, "it was a nice atmosphere ant the decorations really added to the whole Christmas spirit in general."

Cindy Blackston, Student Government Vice President, organized the event and spent a great deal of timetrying to make it run smoothly

Blaskston is often found in the Office of Student Life where she works when not in classes. Since a freshman she has made an effort to correct what she believes is wrong on campus and make it better for the whole college community.

DAIRY  BEEF

HOW DIFFERENT ARETHEY?

Everybody knows that Dairy cows give milk, but not everybody knows what running a dairy herd operation entails. In fact, when questioned what a dairy cow looks like, the most common reply is, "They're the black and white ones, right?"
Wrong. Just as there are different races of people in this world, there are also several breeds of dairy cattle such as the Holstein (the black and white one), A ryshire, Geurnsey, Jersey, and Brown Swiss. Although varied in appearence and size, herd management practices are basically the same.
The cows lactate (or give milk) for approximately 305 days a year. The remaining sixty days is used as a dry, or rest, period before the calf is born and the new lactation period begins. Each individual cow and breed have different milk averages so some cows will give seventy-plus pounds of milk and others may only give thirty or more. The majority of dairy farmers milk twice a day twelve hours apart but some will even milk three times.
When a dairy calf is born he is given the first milk to come from its mother, or colostrum, which contains the precious antibodies critical to the development of a newborn's immune system. The calf is then removed and placed either in a calf hutch, which is similar to a dog house, or with other calves where they are bottle fed or bucket fed milk until they are older. Since it is the birth which triggers the lactation process, dairy cows need to have a calf every year or they won't produce any milk.
Just as dairy cows are composed of several different breeds, so are beef cattle. Each was developed for a specific reason such as climate adaptation, polled vs. horned or overall muscling. DVC's herd consists of purebred Angus (black) and Polled Hereford (mahoghany and white) cows.
There are basically three types of beef production systems: seed stock, cow-calf, and feeder calves. A seed stock operation's main goal is to breed top quality purebred animals and sell them to other ranches and farmers to improve theirown stock. A cow-calf system's purpose is to raise one calf a year from each cow and sell the weaned calves to feed lots. A feed lot, or feeder operation, finishes the animals out to market weight as yearlings when they are sold.
Market weight for beef is between 1100 and 1300 pounds depending on several different factors like age, sex, and frame size. The actual pounds of finished product is much less due to the weight of the skeleton, intestines, hide, hooves and anything else not used.
So, although a cow is a cow, persay, they are definitely not alike with respect to the people and methods involved with them. Both were developed for specific purposes and each fulfills a basic, albeit very important, need for society.

MELTING POT

Foods also play a great fistorical role in the formation of  our country

American cooking reflects a diverse history of culture, class, faith, war, and fortunes weaved with the richness of snickerdoodles, cowpoke beans, beef jerky, hush puppies and much more.
Old World favorites were enjoyed by the homestead-ers-sausage, spiced cabbage and salted fish from the Scandinavians; the Germans brough pickling and wurst, a mixture of venison and pork wih coarsesalt, pepper and saltpeter;Jewish emigrants shrared kasha and garlic flavored pickles.

Following the French Revolution the continent introduced fondues, bonbons, sweet oil, tomatoes, and fricassees to a simple population who became delighted with the culinary feasts.
In the sixteenth century, Spanish

The enjoyment and contentment of eating is measured by what one has been tanght to accept as good or bad. Religion has a profound effect on what we eat and at times one finds it difficult to separate religious and socially cultural reasond for our behavioral patterns of eating. In almost all societies, the act of eating is an important part of culture, of the family unit, of friendships and often of political and business communications."

- Alice Bonzi Mothershead
missionaries imported wheat, sheep, and cattle while wine was made possible by Mexian friars. French priests came to the New World with bottles of olive oil and seasoned herbs and wild greens for salads since there was no lettuce.
Cooking preferences differed from coast to coast as well as the meal itself. While easternersenjoyed beef lightly c o o k e d, westerners insisted on meat being cooked "to leather."
From food origin to preparation, America is certainly a melting pot of culture and heritage.

In today's world the differences should not be overlooked, nor should they be singled out. America is truly the combination of many rich customs and beliefs.

Very few people do not know how to play Monopoly and, for many, the game is as much a part of the family as a pet or sibling. When Charles Darrow created the game at the kitchen table of his Germantown, Pennsylvania home in 1930 he had no idea that it would be as popular as it is today.
Friends would visit to play the game and eventually wanted their own. News spread and soon there was more of a demand for Darrow's game than he could handle alone. In 1934 he asked Parker Brothers if they would be interested in producing and marketing the game on a national basis.

The 50 year old company tried out Monopoly, as was done with all prospective games, but even though it was found to be enjoyable, Parker Brothers rejected it because many (52 in fact) standards established for family games were not met. The game buying season of Christmas was at hand and F. A. O. Schwarz ( a major toy store in New York) ordered two hundred sets. Parker Brothers then reconsidered their decision and offered to buy Monopoly outright with royalties given to Darrow. These royalties made Darrow a millionaire, (Continued on page 147.)

allowing him to retire at the age of 46 in Bucks County. In 1970, a few years after his death, Atlantic City erected Plaque on the Boardwalk near Park Place in his memory.
By the end of the first year Parker Brothers had sold more than one million sets, and by the end of 1974 it had sold close to eighty million. Over the years, Monopoly has had its share of world records and in order to handle the recognition of many interesting Monopoly feats the Monopoly Marathon Records Documentation Committee was formed and is now located at 509 Madison Avenue in New York.
The first official Monopoly event occurred in 1961 when a University of Pittsburgh fraternity played a 161 hour game. This was broken many times until 1971 when a group of twenty students played non-stop from July 21 until August 24. This record of 820 hours of continuous play stood until thirty-four students began playing relentlessly on June 18, 1974. They passed the 820 hour mark and finally, on July 30 , some 42 days later, they reached the ultimate goal of 1,008 hours of play.
According to one expert, the popularity of Monopoly comes from the premium placed on bad sportsmanship, "It's the thrill you get when you know you've wiped out a friend."

CLEAN-UP

Thanks to a few dedicated and hard working students under the direction of Mrs. Frick and Jamie Haddon, Pride and Polish Day was held without a hitch. Yet again Del-Val students donated thier precious time and effort in order to give the campus a much needed face-lift. Although most of the projects were directly related to ADay, over seventy people participated andmany were not A-Day members!

Due to the excessive number of snow days, Pride and Polish could not take place during the week and almost did not occur at all. However, Jamie Haddon worked diligently at recruiting help and convincing people how neccessary of an event it really is.

From painting A-Day booths to picking up trash, everyone worked to improve the look of Del-Val and had fun doing it.

SHOW THEIR ALL!

(A-Day is the showcase weekend for the entire school when everyone can shine. From freshman for the first time to the professor who has been here for ages, it truly illustrates that no two people are alike. I would like to thank Shelly Chase for taking time to share the reasons why she participates in $4-H$ and the sheep industry.
-Special Events Ed.) As lam asked to think back to how I became involved with sheep and the sheep industry many things come to mind. 1 think of all the trophies and all sorts of ribbons that show the results of various competitions but I also realize the hard work and determination it took to be able to hold those rewards in my very own hands. Another thing that comes to mind is the confidence and the respect from others that these animals have made me work to achieve.
I was given my first lamb when I was 10 years old and it became the ultimate project for $4-\mathrm{H}$. From there my flock of sheep grew to be up to thirty registered Southdowns at any given time. With this I broadened my horizons and $4-\mathrm{H}$ became a big part of my life. I showed sheep as well as raised them for market animals. This is how my interest became so intense and carried me to Del-Val and showing at A-Day. My love for sheep and keeping such a keen interest in them has come mostly from me, but not myself alone. There have been many people who followed me and are my life-long supporters. These people are mainly my parents and family. Although I had friends to support me through the bad times, I taught myself nearly everything I know and can do with sheep; from feeding and managing them to preparing them for show and competing with them. Because of this I have been able to travel around the country and compete at local and state levels as well as nationally.

I would like to thank everyone for the help, guidance, and sincere support and thanks to Del-Val for a great A-Day show! I think everyone should participate in the livestock show if not to try something you may never have done before but to have a great time doing it, too!

A Learning Experience

From any angle something can be learned by being involved with or attending A-Day weekend. The students organize the event and spend a whole year planning an event which lasts only two days. Those who visit gain a lot by seeing the club exhibits and the different livestock. By far the most popular thing at A-Day, however, has to be the food! It is surprising to see the results of one day's preparation benefitso many. The different clubs and organizations were responsible for the preparation and distribution of their assigned concession. Omega Chi's funnel cakes were a hot item-the line often curled its way back along Segal Hall towards the dining hall. As always, Block and Bridle's pork bar-b-que sold out on the first day and club members were forced to work elsewhere to earn hours.
This year many new attractions were added. More horse related events, a hot wings booth, children's games and a trailer loaded with Australian animals. The Alumni field was packed full with several kinds tractors, cars, trucks, and antiques to make anyone look.
There was much to be learned by the exhibits, too. The Biology club dealt with the microscopic world and presented discussions on the organisms in the air that is breathed. The A piary Society provided a display complete with hive and bees and sold many apiary products and candle making supplies. A hands on exhibit was setup by the Environmental Awareness club that allowed children to take part in the recycling of newspaper. Via displays concerning education, conservation, and consumer awareness, they attempted to educate the public. Much can be learned, wether through participation or observation and to not benefit from A-day would be a waste of time. It gives the students a chance to grow and the community a chance to learn.

The Show Must Go On!

SAC members worked very hard to bring many new and varied entertainments to the campus. From the old favorite Dave Binder to the New Wave sound of The Lime Rockets, every taste was satisfied as best they possibly could.

Through intense programming, dedicated members brought both entertainment and educational events. While the bands marched to their own beat, Sharon Lund gave a powerful lecture detailing her personal experience with AIDS, warning students they need to be more aware of both the physical and emotional impact of contracting this deadly disease and the frighteneing statistics singling out college students.

BLIZZARD OF BUCKS FUN! WHAT OTHER EVENT makes you do crazy things for money? (Excluding college tuition, that is.)

posted a notice. Off- campus students would call security or listen to the radio. For the first snow storm, commuters were asking what the school number was. By the last storm, they knew it by heart.

In this area we are lucky to see a total of five inches per year and this winter each storm dumped five inches on us. Near the end, instead of excitement in the air when snow was forcasted students and faculty were annoyed. With a sarcastic tone in their voice people were saying, "It's snowing AGAIN!!'

When college students think of the Assistant Dean of Students or the Director of Resident Life, they usually imagine the disciplinarian, the housing official, or the RA's supervisor. In December, Del Val had a new person step into the role of Assistant Dean of Students. With the hiring of Kelly Barclay this winter, Del Val's Residence Life has come far from the start.

Kelly began her profession after receiving her Master of Arts Degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania in December 1988. She then spent four years at York College of Pennsylvania as the Assistant Director of Residence of Life. While at York, Kelly was involved in many campus activities such as Varsity Swim Coach, Advisor of Zeta Beta Tau, Resident Assistant Advisor, and many more. In 1992 she was given the Outstanding New Professional Award by the Pennsylvania College Personnel Association, and is currently the recording secretary for this professional group. Kelly brings to DVC professional experience, a helping hand, an openmind, and great ideas.

Kelly Barclay, the person, is outgoing, humorous, and concerned.

Anyone who has seen the door to her C.C. apartment in Berkowitz Hall will tell you it is filled with inspirational and thought-provoking lines from songs. Her passion for music (and it at high volume) is often heard by the residents of Berkowitz. Her taste in music is like her, flexible, and ranges from Indigo Girls and Melissa Ethridge. to Collective Soul and Pearl Jam, and even into the coutry sounds of Suzy Boggus and Mary Chapin Carpenter.

In her spare time. Kelly is highly involved in human rights. She often participates in rallies. marches, and counsels at support groups for a wide range of issues. Ms. Barclay is also a certified AIDS educator and participated in the AIDS Quilt, THE NAMES PROJECT.

As Kelly begins her first full academic year at DVC in the fall of 1994, she welcomes the challenges of an everchanging student body. She recognizes the uniqueness of an individual as well as supporting the diversity of the entire student body. Kelly's interests are many but her top priority is being an educator. mentor, and role model to the students.

Welcome Kelly and Good Luck!

f you have enjoyed any of the student activities this past year, from movies and dances to games and guest speakers, you have enjoyed the benefits of all the work Justin Lawhead has put into the student activities program. Justin spent many long hours contacting people and organizing events to improve campus life and provide some fun for the students at Del Val.

Justin was the Coordinator of Student Activities for the campus as well as Yearbook Advisor, SAC Advisor, ICC Advisor, and Student Government Advisor. He put in many long hours for SAC and ICC programs and even his dog, Boomer, chipped in and helped out with the DVC Volunteer Corps in pet therapy. Yet, whenever it came time to take credit for a job well done, Justin always stepped back, preferring to do the behind the scenes work rather than be in the spotlight.

Justin was recently engaged (Congratulations!) and will be leaving Del Val to work in North Carolina. We would like to thank him for all his time and for always coming thru for us. He has put up with a lot more than many staff members would be willing to and we truly appreciate his patience and sense of humor!

Thanks for everything JustinWe'll miss you!

LIVES

Jamie Haddon, annual events chair, coordinated two very successful blood drives for Del Val this year. The Homecoming Blood Drive held on October 13 was sponsored by APO and broke the school's all time record of 166 pints with a new high of 186 pints.
The Valentine's Blood Drive was held February 17 and was sponsored by several clubs. Over 136 pints were donated. More students are getting involved with donating blood and over the past four years there has been a $60 \%$ increase in the number of students donating.

The Strange Disappearance of Justin's Underwear or ...

A "Brief"

Story

thad been a typical day of work at Del Val. After spending long hours orga nizing and planning events for DVC students, our hero Justin Lawhead was happy to go back to his apartment in Cooke Hall. He was greeted by Boomer, his faithful and rather energetic companion. Collapseing into a chair, Justin began to survey the apartment. It was amazing how quickly the chores piled up when you let things go. Dishes needed to be washed, the floor could use a vacuuming and Oh, Heavens! he'd better do some laundry if he planned on wearing underwear the rest of the week.

It was getting late so Justin quickly packed up his clothes and went over to the washers in Work Hall. Sometime later, he went back to check on his belongings only to find the dryer empty with no socks or underwear in sight! Imagine the shock, the horror of our poor hero to realize his clothes had been ruthlessly stolen! The shock shortly turned to anger and frustration and Justin left a few messages for the dorm residents regarding his property.

But the students were not all completely heartless. Afew conscientious souls took up a collection for Justin's Underwear Fund. Most of our heroes clothes were recovered and life returned to normal...for a little while.

Most importantly, our hero learned en important lesson: No matter how insignificant they seem, never take socks, underwear, or college students for granted.

You have made us all so very proud of you, always accomplishing all you had to do.
You may have had some doubts along the way,
as for us we knew you would see this day.
It wasn't easy but your determination pulled you through,
Now as a college graduate life starts a new.
Congratulations for a job well done, now give it a rest and have some fun!

CONGRATULATIONS JESSICA !

We can't begin to tell you how proud we are of you. There have been many hurdles that you have overcome over the past four years. Your strong determination to succeed has made your years at Del Val more than just a memory. The trials and tribulations that you have experienced these last four years have truly been a learning experience that you can grow with the rest of your life. Jessica, continue to follow your conscience and stand by your convictions. As this chapter in your life is about to close, a whole new future is waiting. We wish you only the best in the years to come.

We love you and will always be there for you.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Bob & Keith

To my dearest and closest friends- the foursome: Clay, Ryan, Mark & Geoff. We're been friends for several years and I'm really glad I met y'all. We've had fond moments and I'll always remember them and look back at the pictures (Mark & Clay- shall we dance?) I'll miss you-keep in touchPlease!

Del Val is in Ripley's Believe It or Not:
"What is believed to be a world's record was established here several days ago when a sow that had farrowed a litter of 15 pigs Monday, April 14, 1933, again farrowed a litter of 13 more six days later."
"The first litter was corss-bred Duroc and Berkshires and red and black in color, while the second litter were all Berkshire and black in color."

A New Start

By: Tara Grady and Erica Shick

As with Del-Val, the ' 94 Yearbook staff has come "far from the start!" Due to the jump in staff numbers the Cornucopia has experienced a tremendous amount of growth and change. While most of the new staff had little or no yearbook production know-how they pulled it off and put together one of the best Del-Val Cornucopias to date! However, the size of the staff is not the only change - there are more feature articles (many of which were written by non-staff students), more captions, and index, and a new improved Student Life Section.

A special thanks to Jen Reynolds, Charlotte Walker, Victor Ykoruk, and Jenni Hansell for dedicating their time to help improve this book. Also, a hearty thanks to all those who contributed to the success of this years Cornucopia! Congratulations for a job well done on a book that every one will enjoy.

From the seven that graduated in 1901 to the two hundred and eighty-two in the class of 1994, Del Val has certainly flourished. Starting off with a bang, this year's freshman class was the largest in the college's history forcing dorms to relinquish the lounges and causing a housing crunch.

Homecoming with its Wild Wild West theme raised the spirits of Del Val Aggies as they corralled King's College back to their end of the field and pistol whipped them into defeat. A-Day expanded to include the Equestrian Center with equine events and kids games and demonstrations were added to the schedule of events. SAC programming reached a new level of success with two Dave Binder concerts. Sharon Lund-AIDS speaker, Signs of Life, and other great events.

A game room was set up in the Goldman lounge with a pool table, air hockey, jukebox, and several video games. Also, Ceasar's Pub was renamed Schatzie's Food Court after the late Paul Schatschneider the driving force behind the remodelling.

Yet, the campus was grief stricken by the loss of Dr. William Alli-son-Biology Chairman, Dr. Craig Hill-Dean of the College, and senior Mike Savare. As the college said goodbye to Carol Doyle and Justin Lawhead, it welcomed the new Assistant Dean and Director of Resident Life Kelly Barclay.

It was a year well rounded with its ups and downs, but in the end the college grew further from its roots and far from the start.

Below Kate Flynn, Kelly Sciss, and Michelle Gulden were all seniors on Del Val's softball team.

Left- The Office of Student Life and the Class of ' 97 sponsored the Festival of the World dinner. A live band played during the meal while students went from station to station sampling different types of foods from all over the world.
